

San Jose Mercury News

MercuryNews.com

08/29/2007

More Morsels: A new cantaloupe that's sure to tempt

By Carolyn Jung
Mercury News

There's a new melon in town. And it's crispy, super juicy and intensely flavored.

Dulcinea Sweet 'n Crisp Asian-Style Cantaloupe has orange flesh like other cantaloupes, but an even sweeter, more musky, honey-like taste. It's new to California this year.

A hybrid melon that has not been genetically modified, it is derived from the hami melon discovered in China more than 1,700 years ago. Now grown in the San Joaquin Valley and in Yuma, Ariz., the melons weigh three to five pounds and retail for $2.99 to $3.99 each. Find them through October at select Safeway stores. For more information, go to www.dulcinea.com.

Dulcinea's Sweet 'N' Crisp Asian-style cantaloupe (Dulcinea Farms)